Legislative Activities

FamMedPAC

The AAFP's political action committee, FamMedPAC, puts you at the table when health care decisions are made. It's the financial vehicle through which you can support the election or re-election of candidates who share your commitment to family medicine—and it's the only PAC focused on family medicine.

CME Reporting

Report and track your CME and training while in residency and for the rest of your career. During residency, AAFP's CME reporting tool makes it easy to report your MC-FP points (Parts II and IV), and record and track any special training (procedures, etc.) for later reference and sharing. Then in your final year of residency training, report any CME you've completed on or after January 1 of the year you graduate, and get a jump on meeting your CME requirements. Access and email your transcript as often as you like—for job interviews, licensure, credentialing, insurer requests, and more.
